The indicators and instruments in this report originate from a systematic literature review about IBSE from 2005-2009. To receive a comprehensive picture about research on IBSE, the scope of this review contains instructional aspects 1, implementation areas of politics, stakeholders 2, and teacher education and teacher professional development 3. This report contributes to supplying a systematic overview about instruments and indicators in the field of IBSE. It addresses researchers, politicians, and stakeholders, teacher educators, and teachers who are interested in methods of research and dissemination in the context of science education and IBSE. Science Education, 1934. Science Unit Racine Unified Schools (Wis.), 1971.

The purpose of this book is to establish a broader context for rethinking science learning and teaching by using cultural-historical activity-theoretic approach. Activity theory already steps in its third generation and only a few works have been done on its applications to science education, especially in Europe. The context takes into account more recent developments in activity theory applications in US, Canada, Australia, and Europe. The chapters articulate new ways of thinking about learning and teaching science, i.e. new theoretical perspectives and some case studies of teaching important scientific topics in compulsory education. The ultimate purpose of each chapter and the collective book as a whole is to prepare the ground upon which a new pedagogy in science education can be emerged to provide more encompassing theoretical frameworks that allow us to capture the complexity of science learning and teaching as it occurs in and out of schools. The book captures the dialogic and interactive nature of the transferring the activity theory to both formal and informal science education. It also contributes to the development of innovative curricula, school science textbooks, educational programs, and ICT materials. As a whole, the book moves theorizing and practicing of science education into new face and uncharted terrain. It is recommended to new scholars and researchers as well as teachers researchers Code of Federal Regulations United States.
