The Continuously Variable Transmission (CVT) is driven by both engine input and a Hydro Static Unit (HSU). The pump on the HSU is driven directly off the engine input. The pump drives the HSU motor. The motor output speed is determined by the pump swash plate angle.

The output gear assembly for the HSU motor drives the motor idler gear. The motor idler gear in turn drives the large planetary ring gear, which is part of the compound planetary. The HSU motor varies the speed of the planetary ring gear to add or subtract speed from the planetary.
