

Our common future

In 1987 the Brundtland Commission defined sustainability as

"Sustainable development is development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs."

Yet everything we do in our lives seems to have a negative impact on the world around us. So, what are we to do?

How about creating products that are environmentally friendly in their own right?

Sustainability Brundtland Report Our Common Future:

"Our Common Future" World Commission on Environment and Development, 1987 Defining Sustainable Development for Our Common Future Iris Borowy, 2013-12-04 The UN World Commission on Environment and Development chaired by former Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland alerted the world to the urgency of making progress toward economic development that could be sustained without depleting natural resources or harming the environment Written by an international group of politicians civil servants and experts on the environment and development the Brundtland Report changed sustainable development from a physical notion to one based on social economic and environmental issues This book positions the Brundtland Commission as a key event within a longer series of international reactions to pressing problems of global poverty and environmental degradation It shows that its report Our Common Future published in 1987 covered much more than its definition of sustainable development as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs for which it became best known It also addressed a long list of issues which remain unresolved today The book explores how the work of the Commission juggled contradictory expectations and world views which existed within the Commission and beyond and drew on the concept of sustainable development as a way to reconcile profound differences The result was both an immense success and disappointment Coining an irresistibly simple definition enabled the Brundtland Commission to place sustainability firmly on the international agenda This definition gained acceptability for a potentially divisive concept but it also diverted attention from underlying demands for fundamental political and social changes Meanwhile the central message of the Commission the need to make inconvenient sustainability considerations a part of global politics as much as of everyday life has been side lined The book thus assesses to what extent the Brundtland Commission represented an immense step forward or a missed opportunity

An Analysis of The Brundtland Commission's Our Common Future Ksenia Gerasimova, 2017-07-05 Our Common Future is a joint work produced in 1987 by a United Nations commission headed by former Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Brundtland Also known as The Brundtland Report it offers a classic approach to problem solving by first asking a productive question How do we protect the world we live in for future generations while at the same time stimulating economic and social development right now The solution the work proposes is sustainable development defined in the report as humanity's ability to ensure that it meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs The key conclusion the report came to that we need long term strategies to manage the earth's natural resources proved to be so universally welcomed it introduced the term sustainability into the everyday language of international politics Solving the problem of workable sustainable development became a hot topic leading to the birth of a new academic discipline environmental economics The book offered a solution to the problem of ensuring sustainable development by highlighting the critical importance of international cooperation The Sustainable Urban Development Reader Stephen M.

Wheeler, Timothy Beatley, 2004 Bringing together classic readings from a wide variety of sources this key book investigates how our cities and towns can become more sustainable Thirty eight selections span issues such as land use planning urban design transportation ecological restoration economic development resource use and equity planning Section introductions outline the major themes whilst the editors introductions to the individual writings explain their interest and significance to wider debates Additional sections present twenty four case studies of real world sustainable urban planning examples sustainability planning exercises and further reading Providing background in theory practical application and vision in a clear accessible format The Sustainable Urban Development Reader is an essential resource for students professionals and indeed anyone interested in the future of urban environments State Governance of Mining, Development and Sustainability Tracy-Lynn Field, 2019 States in mineral rich jurisdictions must promote mining as a development industry just as they must protect people and environment from the worst excesses of extractivism State Governance of Mining Development and Sustainability explores how the State s role in facilitating a developmental and sustainable mining industry has been defined In doing so this astute book considers the impact of the policies and laws of mineral rich States themselves multilateral international governance institutions industry associations and environmental justice advocates in the areas of property relations mineral taxation environmental management and mine closure Sustainable Development Anne E. Egelston, 2012-09-13 This book documents the influence of nongovernmental organizations on the rise of the sustainable development movement in international politics It adds to the body of scholarly research on non governmental organizations by examining their political influence during the first two decades of international environmental politics from the Stockholm Conference on the Human Environment in 1972 to the establishment of the World Conference on Environment and Development in 1982 NGOs wielded their rational moral authority to achieve their goals in attending environmental mega conferences In turn these successes gave rise to a symbiotic relationship with the United Nations Environment Program and secured a seemingly permanent position at not only the negotiating table but also the inner hallways and back rooms of the United Nations Introduction to Sustainable Development - Volume I David V. J. Bell, Yuk-kuen Annie Cheung, 2009-06-16 Introduction to Sustainable Development is a component of Encyclopedia of Development and Economic Sciences in the global Encyclopedia of Life Support Systems EOLSS which is an integrated compendium of twenty one Encyclopedias The Theme on Introduction to Sustainable Development implies processes of fundamental change in our social systems and institutions The thrust of this change entails addressing the new global awareness that the earth is finite and all of the planet s life support systems including social and economic systems are globally interconnected and interdependent This volume is aimed at the following five major target audiences University and College students Educators Professional practitioners Research personnel and Policy analysts managers and decision makers and NGOs Environmental Education for Our Common Future Faye Benedict, 1991 Technological Choices for Sustainability Subhas K. McChesney,1991 The objective of this publication is to review critically the recommendations of the Brundtland Report and to examine the issues raised for New Zealand by the recommendations and conclusions of the report The main focus is on understanding the implications of sustainable development in general terms rather than considering each aspect of the report in detail A New Agenda for Sustainability Kurt Aagaard Nielsen,2010 Two decades after the Brundtland Commission's Report Our Common Future adopted the concept of sustainable development this book explores the potential for new practices for those involved in sustainability activity Themes addressed include the provision of a next generation perspective and the provision of new milestones for policy and research The material covered here offers varied perspectives on sustainability and reflects the importance of interdisciplinary work in the field

Cents and Sustainability Cheryl Desha, Charlie Hargroves, Michael Harrison Smith, 2010-09-23 Cents and Sustainability is a clear sighted response to the 1987 call by Dr Gro Brundtland in Our Common Future to achieve a new era of economic growth that is forceful and at the same time socially and environmentally sustainable The Brundtland Report argued that not only was it achievable but that it was an urgent imperative in order to achieve a transition to sustainable development while significantly reducing poverty and driving clean and green investment With some still arguing for significantly slowing economic growth in order to reduce pressures on the environment this new book Cents and Sustainability shows that it is possible to reconcile the need for economic growth and environmental sustainability through a strategy to decouple economic growth from environmental pressures combined with a renewed commitment to achieve significant environmental restoration and poverty reduction Beginning with a brief overview of some of the most pressing environmental challenges of our time the book then explains decoupling theory overviews a number of factors that can undermine and even block efforts to decouple in both developed and developing countries and then discusses a number of key considerations to assist the development of national decoupling strategies The book then focuses on presenting evidence to support greater action not just on climate change but also on decoupling economic growth from the loss of biodiversity and the deterioration of natural systems freshwater extraction waste production and air pollution In the lead up to the 2012 United Nations Earth Summit and beyond Cents and Sustainability will be a crucial guide to inform and assist nations to develop strategies to significantly reduce environmental pressures strengthen their economy create jobs and reduce poverty I commend the team from The Natural Edge Project and their partners for undertaking to develop a response to Our Common Future to mark its 20th anniversary Dr Gro Brundtland Sequel to The Natural Advantage of Nations Published with The Natural Edge Project Report of the Commissioner of the Environment and Sustainable Development to the House of Commons Canada. Reconciling Environmental Protection and Economic Development in Sub-Saharan Africa. The Case of Cameroon Ruddy Fualefeh Morfaw Azanu, 2019-03-26 Master s Thesis from the year 2018 in the subject Environmental Sciences grade A University of Buea course LLM International Law language English abstract This work has engaged in refining current understandings of the possibilities for attaining environmental conservation objectives amidst the incessant struggle for economic advancement in Sub Saharan Africa SSA It has examined the inability of the region to properly assimilate sustainable developmental tenets as reflected in the weaknesses of the several legislations that exist The analysis was done through the concept of the respect for the Rule of Law and considered all relevant factors in terms of structural and administrative changes as well as reflected needs of the region using Cameroon

as a case study Through the doctrinal research approach it demonstrated in theory the correlation between environmental protection and economic development Looking at the legal policy and institutional frameworks for environmental protection within SSA and Cameroon it has examined the effect of the several legislations on business and trade and therefore the overall upshot on economic development The work has consequently scrutinized the possibility of reconciling environment and economic needs through green growth and a green economy Amidst these difficulties associated with the concept of sustainable development the question was therefore contemplated whether the pressing international calls for the restriction of the use of Africa s resources could be tantamount to a disguised neo colonialist move by former imperialist nations to retard the region s advancement The findings of the work therefore revealed outweighing difficulties associated with presently attaining green growth within the region and how its efforts continually stifle economic growth and development The weaknesses inherently associated with the concept of sustainable development which are strongly reflected in the prevailing African situation established some misgivings about the good faith propagated by the rich North towards the poor South The work therefore suggested that the region should properly weigh its needs and goals in the light of the environment and the economy and not rush into commitments it cannot live up to To achieve this it would have to integrate the opinions of all stakeholders into the decision making process from public to private and to individual levels

Adopting the Tune of Phrase: An Emotional Symphony within Sustainability Brundtland Report Our Common Future

In a world eaten by screens and the ceaseless chatter of instant interaction, the melodic splendor and mental symphony created by the prepared word frequently fade in to the background, eclipsed by the constant sound and disturbances that permeate our lives. Nevertheless, set within the pages of Sustainability Brundtland Report Our Common Future a charming fictional value full of natural thoughts, lies an immersive symphony waiting to be embraced. Constructed by an outstanding musician of language, that interesting masterpiece conducts viewers on a psychological journey, skillfully unraveling the hidden tunes and profound influence resonating within each cautiously constructed phrase. Within the depths with this moving assessment, we shall investigate the book is central harmonies, analyze its enthralling writing fashion, and surrender ourselves to the profound resonance that echoes in the depths of readers souls.
