City Limits Jane-Frances Kelly, Paul Donegan, 2015-03-02 Our bush heritage helped to define our identity but today Australia is a nation of cities A higher proportion of Australians live in cities than almost any other country and most of our national wealth is generated in them For most of the twentieth century our cities gave us some of the highest living standards in the world But they are no longer keeping up with changes in how we live and how our economy works The distance between where people live and where they work is growing fast The housing market isn't working locking many Australians out of where and how they'd like

The book also features an explanation of the costs and harms of substance use with academic literature from criminological and epidemiological sources and reports from lead agencies. Additional features include: Details on the origin of wastewater analysis in environmental science; Description of analytical chemistry methods for tracing a wide variety of substances including illicit drugs, alcohol, tobacco and other chemicals; Exploration of the major empirical problems in estimating population consumption of alcohol, tobacco and drugs at the international and national level; Examination of the principles of human research ethics and their application to wastewater analysis. Wastewater Analysis for Substance Abuse Monitoring and Policy Development is a valuable tool for analytical chemists, wastewater scientists and criminologists as well as researchers and policy makers across disciplines who work in drug sectors.
