- The island is described as small and low, with no people or water. It is about two miles away. It is pretty and has sea-grape bushes, a white beach and twenty or thirty palm trees on a hill.
- Phillip and Timothy discuss their options. Timothy wants to go to the island but Phillip thinks they are more likely to be seen and rescued on the raft, or on a bigger island with people on it.
- Timothy ignores what Phillip wants to do and swears that if they go to the island they will be rescued.

Chapter Seven:

- Phillip contemplates the fact that they could be anywhere in the Caribbean on one of many islands.
- Timothy discovers lobsters and fish in the water that they will be able to eat.
- Timothy brings the raft and Stew Cat onto the cay.
- Timothy says he will build a camp. Phillip is disappointed there are no people on the island. Timothy reassures him that they will be rescued.
- Phillip asks Timothy where they are. Timothy does not know but guesses they are somewhere near 15°N and 80°W.
- Phillip asks if schooners will find them here. Timothy says the fishermen follow the fish, and there are definitely fish here which is a good sign.
- Phillip is not reassured and thinks Timothy is lying to make him feel better.
- Timothy and Stew Cat both go off to explore the island. Phillip gets very scared of being alone. He starts shouting out for Timothy to come back. There is no answer.
- Stew Cat returns and then Timothy comes back.
- Phillip tells Timothy never to leave him again.
- Timothy laughs and tells him not to be scared. All there is on the island is Sea-grapes, lizards and palm trees.
