

Step 1: Read the problem carefully.

Read each situation, identify variables and set up a system of equations.

- Context: In January, a newspaper (NP) reports on a nearby basketball game between the home team and the away team. After seeing today's newspaper, both teams' coaching staffs (mathematicians) will know if and if how many points, rebounds, and assists the home team will score. For example, if the home team scores 100 points, how many points will the away team score?

Question: If the home team scores 100 points, how many points will the away team score?

Variables:

100	=	Points scored by the home team	$x + y = 200$ $x = 100, y = 100$
y	=	Points scored by the away team
- Context: The home team and the away team will play a basketball game. The home team will score 100 points. The away team will score 100 points. How many points will the home team score? How many points will the away team score?

Question: If the home team scores 100 points, how many points will the away team score?

Variables:

100	=	Points scored by the home team	$x + y = 200$ $x = 100, y = 100$
y	=	Points scored by the away team
- Context: Several teams will play a basketball game. The home team will score 100 points. The away team will score 100 points. How many points will the home team score? How many points will the away team score?
