

Cassandras Analysis

Within only two months, the United States Navy experienced two horrible accidents in 2017. What's significant about these accidents is that they occurred under oddly similar circumstances. These events thus raised a burning question about the Navy's way of functioning: What went wrong? ProPublica, a nonprofit organization that serves as a news source, wrote an article in 2019 discussing these tragic events. But who were the "Cassandras" of this situation? Why were their warnings unable to make any significant impacts? How can the US Navy learn from this?

First of all, a Cassandra must be defined. A Cassandra is someone who provides warnings or predictions of an upcoming disaster based on their personal experience, experience and expertise, but are simply ignored or disregarded. One of the Cassandra's found in the article was the dedicated safety officer from the US Navy. This officer consistently pointed out the issues about maintenance as well as training issues. He specifically pointed out the state of the USS John S. McCain, and predicted an accident in the near future. Despite his warnings, no action was taken on these matters. With the harsh authoritarian system the Navy followed, it was excruciatingly difficult for those who have different opinions to get the attention of the higher ups who had the power to make a change. The next Cassandra was the external analyst, a professional from beyond the Navy who carefully studied these incidents. They provided their research in the form of thorough reports, presenting all the likely risks and what to do about them, but since the analyst was not a part of the navy, the higher ups once again ignored all given warnings, despite the evidence and research presented. The Navy's organization is very strict, making it difficult to take in this external source's information.

The Navy has two different models that they may follow when making decisions. The first one is known as the bureaucratic model. This is a very strict structure in which people follow strict protocols, and decisions are made by those in charge. This model is excellent for guaranteeing organization and order, but prevents new ideas from being taken into consideration or for any adaptation to occur, which is very important when dealing with situations that are constantly changing, as the Navy does. According to the ProPublica article, the bureaucratic model enforced conformity and prevented anyone from pointing out areas of weakness which then resulted in people holding back on saying something when there are vulnerabilities. Next, there is the decentralized model. Essentially what this is, is that everybody has the chance to suggest their ideas no matter what status they have. Although this model does adopt a sense of openness and expand the Navy's opportunities for innovation and responding to early warnings, it

Narrative Medicine: Harnessing the Power of Storytelling through Essays Arthur Lazarus MD MBA, 2024-04-03

Discover the powerful impact of storytelling and narrative in the medical field with Narrative Medicine: Harnessing the Power of Storytelling Through Essays by Arthur Lazarus MD MBA. The book is divided into three sections: Section 1: Medicine, Section 2: Storytelling, and Section 3: Writing. Fifty-one essays offer insights and reflections that delve into the heart and soul of healthcare practice, storytelling, and narrative writing. As the pages unfold, you will journey through the compelling world of narrative medicine, showcasing the profound effect of stories in healing and understanding and underlining their significance in shaping patient experiences, guiding treatment approaches, and fostering a deeper connection between healthcare practitioners and those they serve. This book is an invitation to explore the intricate tapestry of medical narratives and to acknowledge them as an integral part of the therapeutic process.

Folk Epics of Rajasthan: An Ecological Study of

Pabuji and Devnarayan Dr. Meenakshi, 2024-06-30. The book attempts to trace ecological insights embedded in two major folk epics of Rajasthan: Epic of Pabuji and Epic of Devnarayan. The first chapter explores man's relation with nature in the past and attempts to locate the genesis of our attitudes towards nature in ancient myths as well as its portrayal in literature. It tries to define ecology and summarises the ideas about ecological literary criticism given by various critics. It highlights the tradition and types of oral epics in Rajasthan. The second chapter, named Cultural Ecology, focuses on the mutuality and interdependence of nature and culture. It reflects upon what effects human culture has on nature and vice versa in the context of the epics of Pabuji and Devnarayan. The chapter focuses on literary ecology, which explores the ecological dimensions of literary texts and also puts forth the artistic capability of the text as an agency of ecological awareness. The third chapter, named History, Aesthetics, and Phad, explores how painters make phad and to what purpose these phads are made, what purposes of bhopas and commercial consumers it fulfils, and in what ways bhopas inspire the process. It also discusses the history of visual narratives and locates the place of phad in it. It delves deep into the history of phad tradition of painting as well as its aesthetics. The discussion of aesthetics of phad foregrounds how phad helps bhopa in devising as well as improvising the narrative. The fourth chapter, named Performance and Ecology, focuses on how performances of folk epics of Pabuji and Devnarayan further an ecological vision in which natural surroundings play a contributory role in the formation of meanings. An interconnection between the ecology of the region and the performance of phad has been evaluated, which contributes in comprehending the full ecological implications of phad. An analysis of both the epics from an ecological literary perspective substantiates the excellence and contribution of the epics in enriching the literary genre with different aspects of ecological connections between man and other natural elements on earth. The book establishes that the literary ecology of phad is as diverse as an ecosystem. The ecology of phad thrives on cultural diversity, including people from all fields such as phad painters, phad performers, and the audience/followers of the deities. This correlation is based not only on their economic relations or transactions but they also depend upon each other for their exclusive identity O Woman, Great is Your Faith! Douglas Sean O'Donnell, 2021-08-26 The concept of faith holds a central position in New Testament and early Christian thought yet this concept has not received the careful attention it deserves in the Synoptic Gospels The present study offers a comprehensive analysis of faith as a key motif in the Gospel of Matthew where it plays a major role in communicating this Gospel's vision for how readers should respond to the person and message of Jesus The argument propounded is that Matthew's unique narrative portrayal of the Canaanite woman's faith 15 21 28 is used for pedagogical purposes namely that by comparing and contrasting her great faith with those characters expressing no faith and little faith Matthew uses Jesus's quantitative terms to teach on the nature of true faith She embodies Matthew's theological vision of faith Even though she is a gentile outsider enemy she comprehends the universal scope and abundant blessings of Jesus's mission Moreover she acknowledges Jesus's messianic identity correctly perceiving him to be both David's royal heir and David's Lord Finally based on who she perceives Jesus to be and the purpose of his mission she demonstrates faith as trust manifested in action Greco-Roman Culture and the New Testament David Edward Aune, Frederick Brenk, 2012-03-20 Focusing on a strength of the faculty of the Pontifical Biblical Institute this volume is a collection of nine essays by an international group of scholars who have used texts from the Greco-Roman world to illuminate various aspects of the New Testament Jesus Risen in Our Midst Sandra M. Schneiders, 2013-11-22 Jesus Risen in Our Midst mines the Resurrection Narrative of John's gospel as a rich resource for understanding and developing Christian spirituality In this series of essays which can be read independently of one another Scripture scholar Sandra Schneiders draws out especially fascinating insights on the place of the Resurrection in the overall structure of the Gospel of John the important structure of John 20 which presents a series of episodes that are internally related to each other and constitute a distinctive synthesis of Christian spirituality what the Resurrection story reveals about the New Covenant promised by Jeremiah and Ezekiel the anthropology and eschatology that is operative in John's account of the Resurrection the distinction in John between the Glorification and the Resurrection of Jesus How Students Write: A Linguistic Analysis Laura Louise Aull, 2020-04-01 Broad generalizations about people today are a familiar feature of first year student writing How Students Write brings a fresh perspective to this perennial observation using corpus linguistics techniques This study analyzes sentence level patterns in student writing to develop an understanding of how students present evidence draw connections between ideas relate to their readers and ultimately learn to construct knowledge in their writing Drawing on both first year and upper level student writing the book examines the discourse of students at different points in their education It also distinguishes between argumentative and analytic essays to explore the way school genres and assignments shape students' choices In focusing on sentence level features such as hedges perhaps and boosters definitely this study shows how such rhetorical choices work together to open or close opportunities for thoughtful exchanges of ideas Attention to these features can help instructors foster civil discourse
