Design is highly relevant to the development of ITSs Scenarios are information rich task problem contexts that are closely aligned with real world situations that professionals face in their jobs The tasks problems exhibit ecological validity rather than stripped down abstract simplifications Developers of ITSs and other adaptive instructional systems need to have principled guidance on how to design these scenarios An example scenario may be a close match to a particular situation in the past but not be representative of a large range of situations that professionals experience in their job An example scenario may be very realistic but not provide reliable and valid assessments of the learners performance to guide assessments summative formative or stealth Research teams that build high quality scenarios need to include expertise in the targeted profession assessment learning science and computer science The current book brings together experts on ITSs to discuss their work as it applies to Competency Based Scenario Design We believe that this book can be used as a resource for those who have an interest in developing Scenarios for ITSs and who want to learn more about how to do so Using Cognitive and Affective Metrics in Educational Simulations and Games Harold F.
