

Scientific Report Structure

The scientific report is written after you complete your investigation. This is the final product that you submit to your teacher for marking. It is important your report should be written in good time and in the planned order that the your experiments take at the following sections:

Title

Write a title that describes the aim of the experiment and your report to class

Background Information/Research

Be aware to include your results in the theory about your experiment. You can use this space to talk about the theory and scientific theories related to your investigation.

Aim

The scientific statement that defines the purpose of your investigation

Justification

Be justified in a scientific manner of your experiment that is based on your own or other knowledge

Method

The order and order of your report should include specific details about what you did in your experiment. Include all information about your equipment, including materials, ingredients, measurements etc.
You should also ensure that you detail how you set your experiment and include any relevant diagrams for observations made in carrying the experiment

Results

The actual measurements that you found during your experiment. Any tables, graphs and images to display your results. You can also include several examples of diagrams if that can help. You can also show you complete any calculations and so the average, standard deviation, standard error etc.

Discussion

In the discussion you are explaining and interpreting your results. The discussion is also a space for reflection. Things you might be asked to think about are as follows:

- What is the main result?
- Do the results match the hypothesis and research?
- What were the main sources of error in the experiment?
- How could the error have affected the results?
- How could these be improved in the future?
- What are the implications of the results for the future?

Conclusion/Evaluation

Be clear about the purpose of the experiment. Be aware that you can also include a reflection about you in the final. It is important that you include a reflection on the quality of your work and that you have had the right idea.
You can also give your teacher what you got if the you should provide and if you want to do a specific reflection on your
