Christopher Williams,1998-12-01 As Plato's tripartite division of the soul Descartes's criterion of clear and distinct ideas and Kant's notion of the categorical imperative attest philosophy has traditionally been wedded to rationalism and its intellectualist view of persons In this book Christopher Williams seeks to wean his fellow philosophers away from an overly rationalistic self understanding by using resources that are available within the philosophical tradition itself including some that anticipate strands of Nietzsche's thought The book begins by developing Hume's critique of rationalism with reference especially to the section of the Treatise that deals with the continuing existence of bodies an argument that subverts intellectualist criteria by attempting to satisfy them and to his neglected essay The Sceptic where Hume reveals the importance of our embodiment through a comic portrayal of philosophers efforts to correct our sentiments Then it moves on to ward off charges of irrationalism by showing that although our powers of self correction are more limited than the rationalist thinks they are a Humean position is able both to sustain a commitment to reflection and to sensitize us to a version of irrationalism manifest in monotheistic theologies that is otherwise difficult to detect The book concludes more speculatively with a comparison of persons to artworks in order to show how our aesthetic dimension is the source of some of the normative work previously assigned to rationalist reason Ranging as it does across subfields from epistemology and history of philosophy to ethics and aesthetics A Cultivated Reason should appeal to a wide audience of philosophers and to scholars in other fields as well The Journal of Maurice de Guérin Maurice de Guérin,1867 Louis Althusser and the
