

The background of the cover art depicts a dramatic scene. A large, multi-headed dragon with a golden, scaly body and long, flowing white hair is breathing fire. In the foreground, a warrior in traditional Chinese armor, including a helmet with a plume, stands amidst the flames, holding a long spear. The overall atmosphere is dark and intense, with a color palette dominated by oranges, yellows, and blacks.

combines Foucault's theory of heterotopia with elements of Wolfgang Iser's reader response theory to work out Black British and British Muslim literature's potential for destabilising exclusionary boundaries. In this way new perspectives open up on the intersections between space, power and literature, intertwining and enriching the discourses of Cultural and Literary Studies. London Labour and the London Poor Henry Mayhew, 1851 A Song for the Horses Kip Hutchins, 2025-10-21 As permafrost in Siberia continues to melt and the steppe in the Gobi turns to desert, people in Mongolia are faced with overlapping climate crises. Some nomadic herders describe climate change as the end of a world. They are quick to add that the world has ended before for Indigenous people in North Asia as waves of colonialism have left the steppe with a complicated web of apocalypses. A Song for the Horses by K. G. Hutchins examines cases in which people respond to the pressures of climate change by drawing on cultural heritage to foster social resiliency. Hutchins's ethnographic research, spanning more than a decade, provides a vivid and intimate portrayal of Mongolian life. Musicians use the morin khuur or horse fiddle to engage with the subjectivities and agencies of nonhuman animals and other beings. This work is a significant contribution to the posthuman turn in social sciences, engaging with theories from prominent scholars such as Donna Haraway and Anna Tsing. As climate change continues to impact communities worldwide, this book offers a unique perspective on how cultural heritage can be mobilized to address environmental challenges, providing valuable lessons for global efforts to build sustainable and resilient futures. At the intersection of music, environment and posthumanism, A Song for the Horses shows how Mongolian musicians use cultural traditions to imagine and build toward alternative futures beyond climate change and neoliberalism. The Music of China's Ethnic Minorities Yongxiang Li, 2006 China boasts many great musical traditions; these traditions have made an indelible mark on Chinese culture that has been felt by every generation. The Final Film of Laurel and Hardy Norbert Aping, 2014-01-10 The remarkable story behind the planning, development and marketing of Laurel and Hardy's ill-received final film Atoll K has been little explored. Details on the script, development, cast, crew, locations and even basic information on running times and release dates have been sketchy at best since the film's 1951 release. This work reconstructs the circumstances surrounding this unusual international co-production. Atoll K was a French-Italian film with English-speaking stars. Through lost documents detailing the film's production and funding, previously unreleased behind-the-scenes photos and a rare interview with French movie star Suzy Delair, the author explores the continuous changes to the film's script during its chaotic production and the final marketing of the film's many different versions. Atoll K was also released as Robinson Crusoe Land in the United Kingdom and as Utopia in the United States. Several appendices detail alternative sequences and cut scenes in various versions of the film and include French box office reports from 1951 to 1952 as well as a complete filmography. Mongolian Film Music Lucy M. Rees, 2016-03-03 In 1936 the Mongolian socialist government decreed the establishment of a film industry with the principal aim of disseminating propaganda to the largely nomadic population. The government sent promising young rural Mongolian musicians to Soviet conservatoires to be trained formally as composers On their return they utilised their traditional Mongolian musical backgrounds and the musical skills learned during their studies to compose scores to the 167 propaganda films produced by the state film studio between 1938 and 1990 Lucy M Rees provides an overview of the rich mosaic of music genres that appeared in these film soundtracks including symphonic music influenced by Western art music modified forms of Mongolian traditional music and a new genre known as professional music that combined both symphonic and Mongolian traditional characteristics Case studies of key composers and film scores are presented demonstrating the influence of cultural policy on film music and showing how film scores complemented the ideological message of the films There are discussions of films that celebrate the 1921 Revolution that led to Mongolia becoming a socialist nation those that foreshadowed the 1990 Democratic Revolution that drew the socialist era to a close and the diverse range of films and scores produced after 1990 in the aftermath of the socialist regime

The Poetry of Li He Robert Ashmore, 2023-06-19 Li He 790 816 holds a place in China's poetic history somewhat outside the mainstream but in every generation of readers there have been those who have found his intense and often cryptic lyrical visions irresistibly fascinating and utterly without parallel He is renowned particularly for his lyrical reimaginings of song traditions from the ancient past and his premature death along with the otherworldly quality of many of his works led later readers to view him as the emblematic cursed poet whose fascination with ancient history with ghosts and with celestial and demonic beings seemed to presage the brevity of his own existence Li He's style and diction are often idiosyncratic and even hermetic and his work presents daunting challenges to readers wishing to follow the flights of his imagination or simply to construe the basic sense of his language This volume presents close translations of all of Li He's poetry in facing page format with the original texts with explanatory notes on literary and historical references and difficult points of interpretation along with endnotes briefly discussing textual variants and other technical matters Taken together these features will be a welcome aid to readers wishing to explore Li He's poetic worlds first hand
