The Machinery Of Criminal Justice:

The Machinery of Criminal Justice Stephanos Bibas, 2012-02-28 Two centuries ago American criminal justice was run primarily by laymen Jury trials passed moral judgment on crimes vindicated victims and innocent defendants and denounced the guilty But since then lawyers have gradually taken over the process silencing victims and defendants and in many cases substituting plea bargaining for the voice of the jury The public sees little of how this assembly line justice works and victims and defendants have largely lost their day in court As a result victims rarely hear defendants express remorse and apologize and defendants rarely receive forgiveness This lawyerized machinery has purchased efficient speedy processing of many cases at the price of sacrificing softer values such as reforming defendants and healing wounded victims and relationships In other words the U S legal system has bought quantity at the price of quality without recognizing either the trade off or the great gulf separating lawyers and laymen s incentives values and powers In The Machinery of Criminal Justice author Stephanos Bibas surveys the developments over the last two centuries considers what we have lost in our quest for efficient punishment and suggests ways to include victims defendants and the public once again Ideas range from requiring convicts to work or serve in the military to moving power from prosecutors to restorative sentencing juries Bibas argues that doing so might cost more but it would better serve criminal procedure s interests in denouncing crime vindicating victims reforming wrongdoers and healing the relationships torn by crime

Co-production and Criminal Justice Diana Johns, Catherine Flynn, Maggie Hall, Claire Spivakovsky, Shelley Turner, 2022-08-09 This book explores practical examples of co production in criminal justice research and practice Through a series of seven case studies the authors examine what people do when they co produce knowledge in criminal justice contexts in prisons and youth detention centres with criminalised women from practitioners perspectives and with First Nations communities Co production holds a promise that people whose lives are entangled in the criminal justice system can be valued as participants and partners helping to shape how the system works But how realistic is it to imagine criminal justice service users participating partnering and sharing genuine decision making power with those explicitly holding power over them Taking a sophisticated yet accessible theoretical approach the authors consider issues of power hierarchy and different ways of knowing to understand the perils and possibilities of co production under the shadow of justice In exploring these complexities this book brings cautious optimism to co production partners and project leaders The book provides a foundational text for scholars and practitioners seeking to apply co production principles in their research and practice With stories from Australia the United Kingdom and Ireland the text will appeal to the international community For students of criminology and social work the book's critical insights will enhance their work in the field ABA Journal ,1961-06 The ABA Journal serves the legal profession Qualified recipients are lawyers and judges law students law librarians and associate members of the American Bar Association The Routledge Handbook of Technology, Crime and Justice M. R. McGuire,Thomas Holt,2017-02-24 Technology has become increasingly important to both the function and our understanding of the justice process Many forms of criminal behaviour are highly dependent upon technology and crime control has become a predominantly technologically driven process one where traditional technological aids such as fingerprinting or blood sample analysis are supplemented by a dizzying array of tools and techniques including surveillance devices and DNA profiling This book offers the first comprehensive and holistic overview of global research on technology crime and justice It is divided into five parts each corresponding with the key stages of the offending and justice process Part I addresses the current conceptual understanding of technology within academia and the criminal justice system Part II gives a comprehensive overview of the current relations between technology and criminal behaviour Part III explores the current technologies within crime control and the ways in which technology underpins contemporary formal and informal social control Part IV sets out some of the fundamental impacts technology is now having upon the judicial process Part V reveals the emerging technologies for crime control and justice and considers the extent to which new technology can be effectively regulated This landmark collection will be essential reading for academics students and theorists within criminology sociology law engineering and technology and computer science as well as practitioners and professionals working within and around the criminal justice system Cleveland Foundation Survey of Criminal Justice in Cleveland Cleveland Foundation,1922 Choosing the Future for American Juvenile Justice Franklin E. Zimring,David S. Tanenhaus,2014-05-02 This is a hopeful but complicated era for those with ambitions to reform the juvenile courts and youth serving public institutions in the United States As advocates plea for major reforms many fear the public backlash in making dramatic changes Choosing the Future for American Juvenile Justice provides a look at the recent trends in juvenile justice as well as suggestions for reforms and policy changes in the future Should youth be treated as adults when they break the law How can youth be deterred from crime What factors should be considered in how youth are punished What role should the police have in schools This essential volume edited by two of the leading scholars on juvenile justice and with contributors who are among the key experts on each issue the volume focuses on the most pressing issues of the day the impact of neuroscience on our understanding of brain development and subsequent sentencing the relationship of schools and the police the issue of the school to prison pipeline the impact of immigration the privacy of juvenile records and the need for national policies including registration requirements for juvenile sex offenders Choosing the Future for American Juvenile Justice is not only a timely collection based on the most current research but also a forward thinking volume that anticipates the needs for substantive and future changes in juvenile justice Judgments of Love in Criminal Justice Farhad

Malekian,2017-03-31 This volume is a new chapter in the future history of law Its general perspective could not be more original and its critical ethical edge on the state of international law could not be timelier It explores a compassionate philosophical approach to the genuine substance of law criminal procedure international criminal law and international criminal justice It divides law into three interrelated disciplines i e legality morality and love The norm love is derived from human reason for man s advancement and the securing of natural law It is more than a mere mandatory norm Its goal is to generate a normative and positive powerful result therefore avoiding any impurity that may exist in the application of other norms because of political or juridical pressures a one eyed justice The norm love also renders justice with the principles of legal accountability transparency and the high moral authentic values of humanity The notion of justice cannot be trusted in the absence of the norm love The volume indicates the conditions of its efficiency by proving the reasons for its existence in the context of fairness objectivity and concern for all individuals and entities The concept of the norm love should be the core academic corpus for lecturing law in all faculties of law It is simply the enlightenment of the 21st century A lawyer with requisite knowledge and skill is not a lawyer if he cannot understand that the law does not need a lawyer with ethical competence in its provisions for income purposes but one with knowledge of its essence for the advanced morality of justice and the sheer essence of love for justice Proportionality in Crime Control and Criminal Justice Emmanouil

Billis,Nandor Knust,Jon Petter Rui,2021-04-22 This edited volume seeks to reassess the old and to analyse and develop novel approaches to the notion of proportionality in criminal matters and the new security architecture The discourse is not limited to conventional constitutional constellations and standard problems of sentencing in traditional criminal proceedings Rather the book offers an interdisciplinary and cross jurisdictional exploration of highly topical proportionality related issues pertinent to penal theory and legal philosophy criminalisation policies security and anti terrorism strategies alternative types of justice delivery and supranational enforcement as well as human rights and international criminal and humanitarian law In today s global risk society with its numerous visible and invisible enemies of the state and the individual balancing freedom and security has become nothing less than an attempt at untying a Gordian knot Against this background the proportionality of measures of crime prevention and repression is unquestionably an issue of utmost importance which basic research and legal policy in rule of law based systems are urgently called to address The timely and fascinating contributions in this book covering jurisdictions from both the common law and the civil law as well as hybrid and international jurisdictions will appeal to academics researchers policy advisers and practitioners working in the areas of national and international criminal law comparative criminal justice criminology and legal philosophy as well as constitutional and security law Report on the Cost of Crime United States. Wickersham Commission,1931 The Emotional Brain and the Guilty Mind Federica Coppola,2021-02-11 This book seeks to reframe the normative narrative of the culpable person in American criminal law through a more humanising lens It embraces such a reframed narrative to revise the criteria of the current voluntarist architecture of culpability and to advance a paradigm of punishment that positions social rehabilitation as its core principle. The book constructs this narrative by considering behavioural and neuroscientific insights into the functions of emotions and socio environmental factors within moral behaviour in social settings. Hence it suggests culpability notions that reflect a more contextualised view of human conduct and argues that such revised notions are better suited to the principle of personal guilt. Furthermore it suggests a model of punishment that values the dynamic power of change of individuals and acknowledges the importance of social relationships and positive environments to foster patterns of social re integration. Ultimately this book argues that the potential adoption of the proposed models of culpability and punishment which view people through a more comprehensive lens may be a key factor for turning criminal justice into a less punitive more inclusionary and non stigmatising system.
