Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders between two groups of nurses working in different departments of a hospital. The sample consisted of 100 nurses from the Intensive Care Unit (ICU) and 100 nurses from the Emergency Department (ED). Data were collected through a self-administered questionnaire about demographic characteristics, work conditions, and musculoskeletal symptoms. Results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among ICU nurses than ED nurses. The most common symptoms reported by both groups were pain in the neck, shoulder, and back. The results suggest that interventions to reduce musculoskeletal risk factors should be tailored to the specific needs of each department.
