Versions of Primary Education Robin Alexander,2013-04-15 Getting to the heart of primary education six contrasting studies of teachers teaching learning and classroom discourse all set in a historical frame Contains extended lesson transcripts for re analysis The five studies in this book span the tumultuous period from the mid 1980s to the mid 1990s This was a time when the dominant educational ideas and practices of the previous two decades were being questioned and primary teachers were being catapulted from the Plowden era into the very different ethos of the National Curriculum The first four studies portray the ideas practices and dilemmas of primary teaching at different points during this period They also exemplify different approaches to classroom research though all of them stay close to the interactions between teacher and child which are central to learning They thus raise educational questions which are perennial and fundamental rather than tied to policy or fashion The final study uses a broader brush to provide a historical framework for understanding the particular blend of change and continuity which characterises English primary education as a whole

Through Ethics and Values in Primary Education is an accessible text that encourages readers to explore deeply the ethics and values surrounding primary education. The text helps the reader to critically reflect on the principles that underpin education. Specifically written for education students in the later years of their course, the text draws on research and practice to explore the challenges and opportunities involved while helping to develop the reader's own critical thinking skills. The book begins by asking what are ethics and values and goes on to explore social diversity and society and education. It considers ethics and values and the curriculum, school organisation and the classroom. A chapter on ethics, values and the teacher encourages the reader to examine their own thoughts about education. Throughout, practical guidance runs alongside structured critical thinking exercises to help the reader and reflect on both theory and practice.

About the Series: Thinking Through Education is a new series of texts designed and written specifically for those education students entering the second or final phase of their degree course. Structured around sets of specific skills, each chapter uses critical thinking and reflective exercises to develop greater subject knowledge and critical awareness.

Primary Education Anna Craft, 2002-09-11. This wide-ranging sourcebook draws together a range of recent and specially commissioned pieces which examine how policy development and research findings have influenced planning and assessing learning for young children. Teaching Classics Worldwide Steven Hunt, John Bulwer, 2025-02-06. Designed for instructors in schools and universities as well as stakeholders and policy makers in education everywhere, this book is a systematic guide to contemporary school teaching of classical languages, literature and civilisation in major countries across the world. This book examines the trends and assesses the rationale for such diversity in programmes of study and asks the question: What are classical subjects for in today's schools? Each chapter is arranged by geographical area and draws on the experiences of teachers and other education experts in each country, commenting on contemporary practices. Themes such as the impact of national education policies, enrolment, assessment, accessibility and inclusion are discussed. The teaching of Classics has wide variations in practices and purposes from one education system to another. In some, the teaching of Classics continues to be focused on the mastery of language and grammar; in others, active use of the ancient languages is growing in popularity; and yet in others, the focus is shifting towards the study of the languages and civilisations in translation. Presenting an overview, survey and comparison of practices across the world this book is essential reading for instructors and teaching training courses in the world of classical education
