

Summary: THE BLACK CAT

By: Lorena Revueltas

The Black Cat is a short story written by the famous Edgar Allan Poe, who is recognized for his attraction for the death, mystery and surrealism. This story narrates a revenge from Pluto the cat to his keeper, who suddenly changed his loving manner thanks to alcoholism.

A man who had loved the animals, became into an arrogant person. It was obviously that his wife and the pets who live with, started to avoid him soon. One day, after too much drinking, the man got into his house and felt everyone looking down on him including Pluto, what made him get furious. Pluto was the animal that he thought still loving him. It was an unacceptable act and the poor cat paid the consequences. The man take one cat's eye off with a knife! He had lost his mind definitively. A few days later, the cat's neck was tied and hung from a wood beam by the insane man. The same night the house got burned. The man thought that it was caused by the cat, it had took revenge.

One night the man was drinking at the tavern, and found a black cat there, he petted it and realized that it had to be his. It didn't have owner so he took it to home. The cat had just one eye like Pluto, a very creepy and surprising fact. The man was followed by the cat everywhere he went. Then, he started to hate it.

One day the man's wife called his husband from the cellar, while he was getting there the cat made him fell down. That made him so much

The Black Cat Short Story:

The Black Cat Edgar Allan Poe, 2024-11-24 The Black Cat is one of Edgar Allan Poe's most memorable stories. The tale centers around a black cat and the subsequent deterioration of a man. The story is often linked with The Tell-Tale Heart because of the profound psychological elements these two works share. Edgar Allan Poe's short story The Black Cat first published in the August 19, 1843 issue of the Saturday Evening Post is a chilling story written through the eyes of a man awaiting death for the murder of his wife. For over 170 years, the narrator of this story has captivated critics and readers with his allusions to ethos, pathos, and logos as he says that he places before the world plainly, succinctly, and without comment an unsettling account of the events surrounding the murder of his wife and his abuse of the family pets. The narrator declares that he will state his case candidly all the while creating nothing more than a pretense of frankness and objectivity. He titillates readers with details about the horrendous murder of his wife and his first cat. In fact, any cats were actually killed in the making of this story. He also may leave readers wondering about his purpose for writing. The story cannot save him from the noose. He has no progeny and mentions no living relatives who might care about his guilt or innocence, so the story serves little purpose for the writer, leaving readers to wonder who might be the intended audience and what might be the story's point. Readers return to this story perhaps because of the narrator's ability to lure audiences into believing large parts of the tale when the narrator confesses his guilt in the opening and offers incriminating information. Readers may at first think the narrator offers a confidential and unique version of his predicament. However, when the narrator later blames the cat for everything that has gone wrong or when he begins to contradict himself, readers will question narrator reliability. It is true that readers often encounter unreliable narrators in literature, but the dissembling in this story actually points to an important aspect of Poe's work as the numerous inconsistencies and deceptions direct readers away from the story and toward an assessment of the narrator and his behavior.

The Black Cat Annotated Edgar Allan Poe, 2018-02-19 The story is presented as a first person narrative using an unreliable narrator He is a condemned man at the outset of the story 3 The narrator tells us that from an early age he has loved animals He and his wife have many pets including a large beautiful black cat as described by the narrator named Pluto This cat is especially fond of the narrator and vice versa Their mutual friendship lasts for several years until the narrator becomes an alcoholic One night after coming home completely intoxicated he believes the cat to be avoiding him When he tries to seize it the panicked cat bites the narrator and in a fit of rage he seizes the animal pulls a pen knife from his pocket and deliberately gouges out the cat s eye From that moment onward the cat flees in terror at his master s approach At first the narrator is remorseful and regrets his cruelty But this feeling soon gave place to irritation And then came as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow the spirit of perverseness He takes the cat out in the garden one morning and ties a noose around its neck hanging it from a tree where it dies That very night his house mysteriously catches fire forcing the narrator his wife and their servant to flee the premises The next day the narrator returns to the ruins of his home to find imprinted on the single wall that survived the fire the apparition of a gigantic cat with a rope around the animal s neck At first this image deeply disturbs the narrator but gradually he determines a logical explanation for it that someone outside had cut the cat from the tree and thrown the dead creature into the bedroom to wake him during the fire The narrator begins to miss Pluto feeling guilty Some time later he finds a similar cat in a tavern It is the same size and color as the original and is even missing an eye The only difference is a large white patch on the animal s chest The narrator takes it home but soon begins to loathe even fear the creature After a time the white patch of fur begins to take shape and to the narrator forms the shape of the gallows This terrifies and angers him more and he avoids the cat whenever possible Then one day when the narrator and his wife are visiting the cellar in their new home the cat gets under its master s feet and nearly trips him down the stairs Enraged the man grabs an axe and tries to kill the cat but is stopped by his wife whom out of fury he kills instead To conceal her body he removes bricks from a protrusion in the wall places her body there and repairs the hole A few days later when the police show up at the house to investigate the wife s disappearance they find nothing and the narrator goes free The cat which he intended to kill as well has also gone missing This grants him the freedom to sleep even with the burden of murder On the last day of the investigation the narrator accompanies the police into the cellar They still find nothing significant Then completely confident in his own safety the narrator comments on the sturdiness of the building and raps upon the wall he had built around his wife s body A loud inhuman wailing sound fills the room The alarmed police tear down the wall and find the wife s corpse and on its rotting head to the utter horror of the narrator is the screeching black cat As he words it I had walled the monster up within the tomb
