Transportation Research Board, 1995-02 This synthesis will be of interest to state DOT bridge maintenance and construction engineers regulators consultants and contractors involved with the removal of lead paint from bridges and structures and structural coatings specialists chemists and researchers This synthesis describes the current state of the practice for the removal of lead based paint from existing highway steel bridges Avant propos Painting of Steel Bridges and Other Structures Clive H. Bayliss, D.H. Deacon, 2002-08-08 Engineers on major building projects continue to echo the sentiment that painting amounts to 10% of the job but provides 90% of the problems This second edition of Steelwork Corrosion Control provides sound advice and authoritative guidance on the principles involved and methods of achieving sound steel protection Taking into account the considerable developments in the paint protection industry Steelwork Corrosion Control has been comprehensively updated to include new materials and coating systems and the number of new ISO BS European standards and codes of practice on paints and painting health and safety and environmental issues It is a must have guide for engineers architects and designers for whom the protection of structural steelwork is an important albeit relatively minor part of their professional activities David Deacon is the President Elect of the Institute of Corrosion and a Fellow of FTCS Fellowship of Technical Service Coating Derek Bayliss is a Past President of the Institute of Corrosion and has served as Chairman of BS 5493 concerned with coating strucures against corrosion External Corrosion and Corrosion Control of Buried Water Mains Andrew E. Romer, 2004 Water utilities often do not know the specific cause of external corrosion observed on their water mains and consequently the chosen preventative measure may not work effectively Historically these choices are based on data from other industries e g gas and oil and may not be suitable for the water industry Corrosion of metallic pipes can be caused by a variety of mechanisms each of which requires a different solution Determining which corrosion mechanism is at work is not a simple matter because the resulting pipe damage looks similar for all of them The failure to properly identify corrosion sources may produce prevention systems that are ineffective or do not last For example it is not effective to install an anode bag on a main that has a bacteriological corrosion problem Similarly an anode bag installed to reduce corrosion caused by a stray impressed current would be quickly used up and would provide only short term protection Much recent research on corrosion has focused on internal corrosion primarily related to water quality issues such as lead and copper control and red water This project will examine external corrosion which affects the structural integrity of the pipe and makes it vulnerable to leaks and breakage After identifying the causes of external corrosion the study will find economical solutions for each type of corrosion and verify them through field trials
