cost of equity and internal control effectiveness for firms that filed Section 404 reports with the SEC We find marginally higher cost of equity for firms disclosing material weakness in internal controls than for a sample of firms disclosing no material weaknesses The differences in cost of equity disappear after controlling for firm characteristics associated with firms disclosing material weaknesses Overall our results are consistent with internal control weakness identified under Section 404 not being directly associated on average with higher implied cost of equity

The Discovery and Reporting of Internal Control Deficiencies Prior to Sox-Mandated Audits Hollis Ashbaugh Skaife, Daniel W. Collins, Kinney, Jr. (William R.), 2006 This paper uses firms disclosures of internal control problems prior to audits mandated by Section 404 of the Sarbanes Oxley Act SOX to investigate the economic factors that expose firms to internal control failure risks and managements incentives to discover and report internal control deficiencies ICDs We find that firms making pre SOX 404 ICD disclosures typically have more complex operations recent changes in organization structure more accounting risk exposure fewer resources to invest in internal control and higher incidence of auditor resignation relative to firms that do not report internal control problems Regarding incentives to discover and report internal control problems we find that ICD firms have more prior SEC enforcement actions and restatements of financial statements are more likely to use a dominant audit firm and are more likely to have concentrated institutional ownership Our findings are important in developing expectations about determinants of internal control problems across all SEC registrants including non accelerated filers that are not yet required to comply with SOX 404 as well as providing baseline evidence for evaluating the discovery and reporting of ICDs under mandated internal control audits

Corporate Governance Post-Sarbanes-Oxley Zabihollah Rezaee, 2007-10-05 Corporate Governance Post Sarbanes Oxley introduces a corporate governance structure consisting of seven interrelated mechanisms of oversight managerial compliance audit advisory assurance and monitoring The book begins with a discussion of the new requirements for corporate governance and financial reporting brought about by Sarbanes Oxley and then shows how a well balanced functioning of the seven mechanisms produces a responsible corporate governance structure that ensures quality financial reporting and credible audit services Each chapter includes checklists real world case studies and best practice tips

Is SOX 404(a) Management Internal Control Reporting an Effective Alternative to SOX 404(b) Internal Control Audits? Yangyang Fan,2017 Section 404 of the Sarbanes Oxley Act SOX 2002 continues to be controversial Using samples of SEC registrants with market capitalizations less than 150 million we find that non accelerated filers have significantly larger reduction in the likelihood of material misstatements discretionary revenues and discretionary accruals compared to smaller accelerated filers after non accelerated filers became subject to the requirements of Section 404 a Our findings are consistent with the argument that management reporting on internal controls Section 404 a may be a cost effective alternative to internal control audits Section 404 b for smaller U S public companies

Some Observations about SOX 404(b) Control Process Audits Kinney, Jr. (William R.),2014 In the decade since the July 2002 passage of the quickly legislated Sarbanes Oxley Act audit production in the U S has been substantially augmented by implementation of mandated internal control process audits Audit production changes are important as the control audit mandate is unique and imposes substantial costs on U S traded firms yet little is known about the conduct of control process audits or the efficacy of substantially lower cost alternative mechanisms to provide auditor scrutiny and reporting on internal control quality This paper reflects our collective experiences and observation of a consistent message across the decade from analyses of extensive public and limited non public archival data analytical studies and numerous personal experiences of audit practitioners Our primary observation is that absent knowledge of any financial misstatements auditors find it difficult to identify material weaknesses in internal control over financial reporting Conversely with knowledge of misstatements auditors can and do identify at low incremental cost most entities that have ineffective internal controls as identified by control audits Financial misstatement detection is of course the primary tangible output of a financial statement audit Thus it appears possible to exploit this observation to obtain for investors information about companies with weak controls without incurring the cost of a full internal control process audit We believe that U S markets could benefit from more transparency about the current U S audit production process and from informed debate about the best mechanism design for balancing the needs of all parties interested in internal control quality disclosure

Reporting Internal Control Deficiencies in the Post-Sarbanes-Oxley Era Gopal V. Krishnan,2005 This study addresses the role of audit committees and auditors in the reporting of internal control deficiencies after the passage of the Sarbanes Oxley Act SOX We find that a higher number of meetings of the audit committee lesser proportion of quot financial expertsquot in the audit committee and more auditor changes characterize firms that report weaknesses in their internal controls compared to firms with no weaknesses Prior restatements of financial statements are also higher for firms not reporting such weaknesses The results are robust to controlling for a variety of firm characteristics such as complexity of operations profitability and growth Our results underscore the importance of governance characteristics beyond general firm characteristics in examining the reporting of internal control weaknesses
