Uk Committee On Climate Change Report:

Transport and Climate Change Tim Ryley, Lee Chapman, 2012-07-17 This topical volume covers the intersection between transport and climate change with papers from the Transport Climate Change session of the RGS IBG conference in London September 2010 It considers the role of transport modes at varying spatial dimensions and a range of perspectives on the relationship between transport and climate change

Energy 2050 Jim Skea, Paul Ekins, Mark Winskel, 2012-06-25 The United Kingdom is committed to reducing its greenhouse gas emissions by at least eighty per cent by 2050 a target that will only be achieved by transforming the way that energy is supplied and used At the same time there are anxieties about the security of energy provision in terms of European dependency on natural gas and the reliability of electricity supply This book explores in detail those factors which could help or hinder the attainment of the UK's climate change targets and how these factors interact with the parallel objective of maintaining a robust and secure energy system The book is the result of a major national energy research effort by the UK Energy Research Centre which includes some of the UK's leading energy experts The results and recommendations are essential reading for policymakers professionals researchers and anyone concerned with achieving large scale reductions in carbon emissions both from the UK and internationally

Energy 2050 begins by exploring the evolution of the UK energy system over recent decades the trends technologies and environmental impacts related to energy use and the structures and institutions of governance that have influenced this evolution It then moves on to changes in energy policy to emphasise decarbonization and resilience and introduce the approach to scenarios and modelling used in the rest of the book Later chapters explore different aspects of the uncertainties that may enable or constrain the creation of a low carbon resilient UK energy system related to accelerated technology development the creation of an infrastructure to support decentralized energy and microgeneration to lifestyle and behaviour change and to public attitudes to wider environmental impacts associated with energy system change

Energy Humanities. Current State and Future Directions Matúš Mišík, Nada Kujundžić, 2020-11-02 This edited book explicitly deals with the energy humanities summarising existing knowledge in the area and outlining possible future directions for the nascent field Assuming a variety of disciplinary stances and using a plethora of methodologies to address a number of pressing energy related issues the individual contributions showcase the crucial importance of including the humanities and social sciences into the current discussion on energy Furthermore they illustrate one of the central claims of the energy humanities namely that energy permeates all aspects of our contemporary modes of existence and is inextricably linked with historical political social ideological and cultural issues relationships and practices Through numerous case studies Energy Humanities and Energy Transition looks to the past present and future in search of examples of best practices and possible models for pathways to a successful energy transition and life after oil While much of existing research on energy humanities has been criticised for its excessive focus on oil this book considers a wide range of energy resources including nuclear energy renewables and natural gas Furthermore it brings to the forefront under researched topics such as the colonial legacy inscribed in energy infrastructure and the energy history of the humanities The contributions in this volume explore not only how the perspectives and expertise of the humanities and social sciences can alter the discourse on energy transition and our way of thinking about possible solutions and future scenarios but also how their new focus on energy affects the disciplines themselves Energy Humanities and Energy Transition presents a variety of theories methods topics and disciplinary angles meaning it will be of interest to a wide audience from practitioners and policy makers to students and researchers working across the humanities and social sciences The thematically oriented structure distinct focus of each individual chapter and the comprehensive introduction and conclusion that contextualize the contributions within the wider framework of energy transition make this edited book accessible to readers from many different fields and suitable for various university programs

Transitions in Energy Efficiency and Demand Kirsten E.H. Jenkins,Debbie Hopkins,2018-12-07 The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.tandfebooks.com/doi/view/10.4324/9781351127264> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license Meeting the goals enshrined in the Paris Agreement and limiting global temperature increases to less than 2 C above pre industrial levels demands rapid reductions in global carbon dioxide emissions Reducing energy demand has a central role in achieving this goal but existing policy initiatives have been largely incremental in terms of the technological and behavioural changes they encourage Against this background this book develops a sociotechnical approach to the challenge of reducing energy demand and illustrates this with a number of empirical case studies from the United Kingdom In doing so it explores the emergence diffusion and impact of low energy innovations including electric vehicles and smart meters The book has the dual aim of improving the academic understanding of sociotechnical transitions and energy demand and providing practical recommendations for public policy Combining an impressive range of contributions from key thinkers in the field this book will be of great interest to energy students scholars and decision makers

Net Zero, Food and Farming Neil Ward,2022-08-04 This book examines the implications of the net zero transition for food and farming in the UK and how these can be managed to avoid catastrophic climate change in the crucial decades ahead For the UK to meet its international obligations for reducing greenhouse gas emissions nothing short of a revolution is required in our use of land our farming practices and our diet Taking a historical approach the book examines the evolution of agriculture and the food system in the UK over the last century and discusses the implications of tackling climate change for food farming and land use setting the UK situation in an international context The chapters analyse the key challenges for this transition including dietary change and food waste afforestation and energy crops and low emission farming practices This historical perspective helps develop an understanding of how our food farming and land use system has evolved to be the way that it is and draws lessons for how the agri food system could evolve further to support the transition to net zero and avoid catastrophic climate change Written in a clear and accessible style this book will be essential reading to students and scholars of food agriculture and the environment as well as policymakers and professionals involved climate change policy and the agriculture and food industry

Building a Low-carbon Economy Great Britain. Committee on Climate Change, 2008 Climate change resulting from CO₂ and other greenhouse gas emissions poses a huge threat to human welfare To contain that threat the world needs to cut emissions by about 50 per cent by 2050 and to start cutting emissions now A global agreement to take action is vital A fair global deal will require the UK to cut emissions by at least 80 per cent below 1990 levels by 2050 In this report the Committee on Climate Change explains why the UK should aim for an 80 per cent reduction by 2050 and how that is attainable and then recommends the first three budgets that will define the path to 2022 But the path is attainable at manageable cost and following it is essential if the UK is to play its fair part in avoiding the far higher costs of harmful climate change Part 1 of the report addresses the 2050 target The 80 per cent target should apply to the sum of all sectors of the UK economy including international aviation and shipping The costs to the UK from this level of emissions reduction can be made affordable estimated at between 1.2 per cent of GDP in 2050 In part 2 the Committee sets out the first three carbon budgets covering the period 2008-22 and examines the feasible reductions possible in various sectors decarbonising the power sector energy use in buildings and industry reducing domestic transport emissions reducing emissions of non CO₂ greenhouse gases economy wide emissions reductions to meet budgets The third part of the report examines wider economic and social impacts from budgets including competitiveness fuel poverty security of supply and differences in circumstances between the regions of the UK

Combating Climate Change National Assessment of UK Forestry and Climate Change Steering Group, 2009 This assessment presents a science based analysis of the current and potential capabilities of the UK's forests and forest products to contribute to the mitigation of climate change It shows unequivocally that 1 a significant contribution to mitigation could be made by maintaining and increasing the rates at which CO₂ is removed from the atmosphere by the UK's forests the abatement of emissions 2 there are other major contributions that forests and trees can make for example in urban environments and 3 that there are areas where substantial research is required to assess and reduce impacts and to develop the contribution of UK forestry to the mitigation of and adaptation to climate change The report follows the IPCC convention of identifying key findings at the start of each chapter Authors have also identified research priorities at the end of their respective chapters and these proposals require serious and urgent consideration Gaps in understanding are identified and in some instances there is a clear requirement for more scientific evidence in order that uncertainties in the projected impacts of climate change can be reduced The driver in the new research programmes will be the need to enhance the contribution that UK trees and woodlands can make to a low carbon economy It is the expressed intention of the report to provide the detailed evidence required to achieve sustainable forest management under what will be complex and changing climatic circumstances
