Abstract The effects of a 12-week training programme on the physical and psychological characteristics of 10 elite female judokas were studied. The programme was designed to improve the athletes' aerobic and anaerobic performance, and to increase their muscular strength and endurance. The programme consisted of three phases: a 4-week aerobic phase, a 4-week anaerobic phase, and a 4-week strength and endurance phase. The athletes were tested at the beginning and at the end of each phase, and at the end of the 12-week programme. The results showed that the athletes improved their aerobic and anaerobic performance, and their muscular strength and endurance. The programme was effective in improving the physical and psychological characteristics of the athletes.
