Cinema and Language Loss Tijana Mamula, 2013 Cinema and Language Loss provides the first sustained exploration of the relationship between linguistic displacement and visuality in the filmic realm examining in depth both its formal expressions and theoretical implications Combining insights from psychoanalysis philosophy and film theory the author argues that the move from one linguistic environment to another profoundly destabilizes the subject's relation to both language and reality resulting in the search for a substitute for language in vision itself a reversal as it were of speaking into seeing The dynamics of this shift are particularly evident in the works of many displaced filmmakers which often manifest a conflicted interaction between language and vision and through this question the signifying potential and the perceptual ambiguities of cinema itself In tracing the encounter between cinema and language loss across a wide range of films from Billy Wilder's Sunset Boulevard to Chantal Akerman's News from Home to Michael Haneke's Caché Mamula reevaluates the role of displacement in postwar Western film and makes an original contribution to film theory and philosophy based on a reconsideration of the place of language in our experience and understanding of cinema

Phillips, 2021-03-17 An exhaustively researched survey of Raymond Chandler's thorny relationship with Hollywood during the classic period of film noir Alain Silver film producer and author Raymond Chandler's seven novels including The Big Sleep 1939 and The Long Goodbye 1953 with their pessimism and grim realism had a direct influence on the emergence of film noir Chandler worked to give his crime novels the flavor of his adopted city Los Angeles which was still something of a frontier town rife with corruption and lawlessness In addition to novels Chandler wrote short stories and penned the screenplays for several films including Double Indemnity 1944 and Strangers on a Train 1951 His work with Billy Wilder and Alfred Hitchcock on these projects was fraught with the difficulties of collaboration between established directors and an author who disliked having to edit his writing on demand Creatures of Darkness is the first major biocritical study of Chandler in twenty years Gene Phillips explores Chandler's unpublished script for Lady in the Lake examines the process of adaptation of the novel Strangers on a Train discusses the merits of the unproduced screenplay for Playback and compares Howard Hawks's director's cut of The Big Sleep with the version shown in theaters Through interviews he conducted with Wilder Hitchcock Hawks and Edward Dmytryk over the past several decades Phillips provides deeper insight into Chandler's sometimes difficult personality Chandler's wisecracking private eye Philip Marlowe has spawned a thousand imitations Creatures of Darkness lucidly explains the author's dramatic impact on both the literary and cinematic worlds demonstrating the immeasurable debt that both detective fiction and the neo noir films of today owe to Chandler's stark vision Joyce's Ghosts Luke Gibbons, 2015-11-13 Luke Gibbons a prominent Irish scholar and Joycean here offers the first study to make a full and strong argument that Joyce's Irishness is intrinsic to his modernism. It was common in the first generations of Joycean criticism to attribute Joyce's modernism to European exile and to portray Ireland as a romantic backwater, the source of the nets from which Joyce was trying to escape. Gibbons argues, by contrast, that the pressures of late colonial Ireland, a country at once inside and outside the world system, provided the ferment that gave rise to Joyce's most distinctive literary experiments. Crucially, Gibbons holds that Ireland features not just as subject matter or content but as form. Gibbons further argues that Joyce's major achievement was to pioneer an idiom in which narrative is freighted with voices from both inside and outside a culture. Joyce's use of free indirect discourse opens inner life to other voices and shadowy presences produced by a late colonial culture at odds with its own identity. In this sense, Gibbons shows Joyce's language is haunted by ghosts, by voices testifying to forces—technology, empire, urbanization—off the page. This book is sure to become a landmark study of this enduring and widely read novelist and advances our understanding of the connections between modernism and the nation.

Animals in Detective Fiction Ruth Hawthorn, John Miller, 2022-12-06

This book explores the vast array of animals that populate detective fiction. If the genre begins, as is widely supposed, with Edgar Allan Poe's Murders in the Rue Morgue (1841), then detective fiction's very first culprit is an animal. Animals moreover consistently appear as victims, clues, and companions, while the abstract conception of animality is closely tied to the idea of criminality. Although it is often described as an essentially conservative form, detective fiction can unsettle the binary of human and animal, to intersect with developing concerns in animal studies: animal agency, the ethical complexities of human-animal interaction, the politics and literary aesthetics of violence and animal metaphor. Gathering its 14 essays into sections on ontologies, ethics, politics, and forms, Animals in Detective Fiction provides a compelling and nuanced analysis of the central role creatures play in this enduringly popular and continually morphing literary form.

Canal Dreams Iain

Banks, 2008-09-04 Banks once again demonstrates his extraordinary dark powers of imagination. Sunday Times: Hisako Onada, world famous cellist, refuses to fly. And so she travels to Europe as a passenger on a tanker bound through the Panama Canal. But Panama is a country whose politics are as volatile as the local freedom fighters. When Hisako's ship is captured, it is not long before the atmosphere is as flammable as an oxy-acetylene torch and the tension as sharp as the spike on the cello. Praise for Iain Banks: The most imaginative novelist of his generation. The Times: His verve and talent will always be recognised and his work will always find and enthral new readers. Ken MacLeod, Guardian: His work was mordant, surreal, and fiercely intelligent. Neil Gaiman: An exceptional wordsmith. Scotsman.

Historical Dictionary of Film Noir Andrew Spicer, 2010-03-19 Film noir literally black cinema is the label customarily given to a group of black and white American films mostly crime thrillers made between 1940 and 1959 Today there is considerable dispute about what are the shared features that classify a noir film and therefore which films should be included in this category These problems are partly caused because film noir is a retrospective label that was not used in the 1940s or 1950s by the film industry as a production category and therefore its existence and features cannot be established through reference to trade documents The Historical Dictionary of Film Noir is a comprehensive guide that ranges from 1940 to present day neo noir It consists of a chronology an introductory essay a bibliography a filmography and over 400 cross referenced dictionary entries on every aspect of film noir and neo noir including key films personnel actors cinematographers composers directors producers set designers and writers themes issues influences visual style cycles of films e g amnesiac noirs the representation of the city and gender other forms comics graphic novels television and videogames and noir s presence in world cinema It is an essential reference work for all those interested in this important cultural phenomenon
