Resources in Education ,1991 Essential Intensive Care E.S. Jones,2012-12-06 The backbone of in patient care is the hospital ward and I believe that this will remain so in the future Shortcomings in the staffing organization and layout of the conventional ward have been recog nized for a long time but there have been few changes and not all these have benefited the patient The evolution of specialized treat ment centres for poliomyelitis thoracic surgery burns and so on showed the need for a new staffing structure a re organization of patient care and of secondary importance new forms of accom modation These regional or referral centres serve large populations or areas and are collectively known as specialized intensive care or therapy units The idea of using similar principles of staffing organ ization and facilities to serve each large district hospital came much later 1959 and was first applied in the United States Thus the general intensive care unit was born a unit which would treat critically ill patients irrespective of the nature of their disease in sharp contrast to the specialized intensive care unit The staffing structure and technologies of the two are however similar Special ized intensive care consists of a single speciality or two specialities for example thoracic surgery and thoracic anaesthesia General intensive care cannot be a speciality because it embraces the whole of acute medicine acute surgery accident surgery toxicology and many more individual specialities This very diversity makes it difficult to organize but interesting to perform
