

A photograph of a misty forest path. The path is a narrow, reddish-brown trail that leads into the distance, flanked by green grass. On either side of the path are several tall, bare trees with intricate, leafless branches. The air is thick with a soft, white mist, creating a serene and ethereal atmosphere. The lighting is diffused, with no harsh shadows.

Soul is pure awareness.
That's what it is.
It's pure, absolute awareness and Being.

Heidegger W.J. Richardson, 2012-12-06 Dear Father Richardson It is with some hesitation that I attempt to answer the two principal questions you posed in your letter of March 1 1962 The first touches on the initial impetus that determined the way my thought would go 1 The other looks for information about the much discussed reversal in my development I hesitate with my answers for they are necessarily no more than indications of much more to be said The lesson of long experience leads me to surmise that such indications will not be taken as directions for the road of independent reflection on the matter pointed out which each must travel for himself Instead they will gain notice as though they were an opinion I had expressed and will be propagated as such Every effort to bring what has been thought closer to prevailing modes of representation must assimilate what is to be thought to those representations and thereby inevitably deform the matter 2 This preamble is not the lament of a man misunderstood it is rather the recognition of an almost insurmountable difficulty in making oneself understood The first question in your letter reads How are we properly to
