Using Corpus Methods to Triangulate Linguistic Analysis Jesse Egbert,Paul Baker,2019-09-17 This book builds on Baker and Egbert's previous work on triangulating methodological approaches in corpus linguistics and takes triangulation one step further to highlight its broader applicability when implemented with other linguistic research methods. The volume showcases research methods from other linguistic disciplines and draws on ten empirical studies from a range of topics in psycholinguistics, applied linguistics and discourse analysis to demonstrate how these methods might be most effectively triangulated with corpus linguistic methods. A concluding chapter synthesizes these findings as a means of pointing the way toward future directions for triangulation and its implications for future linguistic research. The combined effect reveals the potential for the triangulation of these methods to not only enhance rigor in empirical linguistic research but also our understanding of linguistic phenomena and variation by studying them from multiple perspectives, making this book essential reading for graduate students and researchers in corpus linguistics, applied linguistics, psycholinguistics and discourse analysis.

Perspectives on Spoken Discourse James Rock, Caterina Pavesi, Pierfranca Forchini, 2014-03-26 This book written for both teachers of English and advanced language students presents research related to spoken discourse carried out by three linguists from the Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore The book opens with an article by James Rock on the Common European Framework of Reference and its relevance to the concept of communicative competence and the practice of learning spoken English within the university context In his second article Rock presents an overview of studies on phraseology in the non native speaker setting and shows that initial interest in phraseology in the field of language acquisition highlighted the fact that native like fluency does not stem so much from knowledge of grammatical rules as from features of idiomaticity In the third paper in the collection Caterina Pavesi examines learner English written on the computer and seeks to ascertain the status of this English on the written spoken continuum. Learner English has been the object of a great deal of scholarly attention in recent decades but it has not yet been studied in any great depth in its computer mediated form. The fourth article in the book examines the language of films traditionally considered to be an artificial form of language not representative of speech and thus of little value in the study of spoken discourse. In direct contrast with this view Pierfranca Forchini shows that empirical research on American movies transcribed by her actually proves that the language of movies is extremely similar to conversation along several parameters. Adopting Biber's analytical method Multi Dimensional Analysis which attaches a score to features of language and measures the occurrence of these features grouping them into dimensions which can describe different types of discourse Forchini shows that movie language is surprisingly similar to conversational discourse on four out of five dimensions thus overturning the long held view of the status of this type of language and providing scientific justification for using movies to teach features of spoken discourse. The research was presented at the Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore in Brescia in October 2013 under the auspices of and with the support of the Centro Linguistico dell'Università Cattolica CLUC.
