Benedict, 2021-09-14 A fascinating history of Jorge Luis Borges's efforts to revolutionize and revitalize literature in Latin America Jorge Luis Borges 1899-1986 stands out as one of the most widely regarded and inventive authors in world literature Yet the details of his employment history throughout the early part of the twentieth century which foreground his efforts to develop a worldly reading public have received scant critical attention From librarian and cataloguer to editor and publisher this writer emerges as entrenched in the physical minutiae and social implications of the international book world Drawing on years of archival research coupled with bibliographical analysis this book explains how Borges's more general involvement in the publishing industry influenced not only his formation as a writer but also global book markets and reading practices in world literature In this way it tells the story of Borges's profound efforts to revolutionize and revitalize literature in Latin America through his varying jobs in the publishing industry

Australian Books and Authors in the American Marketplace 1840s-1940s David Carter, Roger Osborne, 2018-07-02 Australian Books and Authors in the American Marketplace 1840s-1940s explores how Australian writers and their works were present in the United States before the mid twentieth century to a much greater degree than previously acknowledged Drawing on fresh archival research and combining the approaches of literary criticism print culture studies and book history David Carter and Roger Osborne demonstrate that Australian writing was transnational long before the contemporary period In mapping Australian literature s connections to British and US markets their research challenges established understandings of national imperial and world literatures Carter and Osborne examine how Australian authors editors and publishers engaged productively with their American counterparts and how American readers and reviewers responded to Australian works They consider the role played by British publishers and agents in taking Australian writing to America and how the international circulation of new literary genres created new opportunities for novelists to move between markets Some of these writers such as Christina Stead and Patrick White remain household names others who once enjoyed international fame such as Dale Collins and Alice Grant Rosman have been largely forgotten The story of their books in America reveals how culture commerce and copyright law interacted to create both opportunities and obstacles for Australian writers Shakespeare in the Marketplace of Words Jonathan P. Lamb, 2017-07-06 Making innovative use of digital and library archives this book explores how Shakespeare used language to interact with the verbal marketplace of early modern England By also combining word history with book history Jonathan P Lamb demonstrates Shakespeare s response to the world of words around him in and through the formal features of his works In chapters that focus on particular rhetorical features in Richard II The Merchant of Venice As You Like It Hamlet and Troilus and Cressida Lamb argues that we can best understand Shakespeare s writing practice by scrutinizing how the formal features of his works circulated in an economy of imaginative writing Shakespeare s interactions with this verbal market preceded and made possible his reputation as a playwright and dramatist He was in his time a great buyer and seller of words Bury Me at the Marketplace N. Chabani Manganyi, David

Attwell, 2009-11-01 When Chabani Manganyi published the first edition of selected letters twenty five years ago as a companion volume to Exiles and Homecomings A Biography of Es'kia Mphahlele the idea of Mphahlele s death was remote and poetic The title Bury Me at the Marketplace suggested that immortality of a kind awaited Mphahlele in the very coming and going of those who remember him and whose lives he touched It suggested too the energy and magnanimity of Mphahlele the man whose personality and intellect as a writer and educator would carve an indelible place for him in South Africa s public sphere That death has now come and we mourn it Manganyi s words at the time have acquired a new significance in the symbolic marketplace he noted the drama of life continues relentlessly and the silence of death is unmasked for all time The silence of death is certainly unmasked in this volume in its record of Mphahlele s rich and varied life his private words his passions and obsessions his arguments his loves hopes achievements and yes even some of his failures Here the reader will find many facets of the private man translated back into the marketplace of public memory Despite the personal nature of the letters the further horizons of this volume are the contours of South Africa s literary and cultural history the international affiliations out of which it has been formed particularly in the diaspora that connects South Africa to the rest of the African continent and to the black presence in Europe and the United States This selection of Mphahlele's own letters has been greatly expanded it has also been augmented by the addition of letters from Mphahlele's correspondents among them such luminaries as Langston Hughes and Nadine Gordimer It seeks to illustrate the networks that shaped Mphahlele's personal and intellectual life the circuits of intimacy intellectual inquiry of friendship scholarship and solidarity that he created and nurtured over the years The letters cover the period from November 1943 to April 1987 forty four of Mphahlele's mature years and most of his active professional life The correspondence is supplemented by introductory essays from the two editors by two interviews conducted with Mphahlele by Manganyi and by Attwell's insightful explanatory notes

Mastering the Marketplace Anne O'Neil-Henry, 2017-12 Mastering the Marketplace examines the origins of modern mass media culture through developments in the new literary marketplace of nineteenth century France and how literature itself reveals the broader social and material conditions in which it is produced Anne O'Neil-Henry examines how French authors of the nineteenth century navigated the growing publishing and marketing industry as well as the dramatic rise in literacy rates libraries reading rooms literary journals political newspapers and the advent of the serial novel O'Neil-Henry places the work of canonical author Honoré de Balzac alongside then popular writers such as Paul de Kock and Eugène Sue acknowledging the importance of low authors in the wider literary tradition By reading literary texts alongside associated advertisements book reviews publication histories sales tactics and promotional tools O'Neil-Henry presents a nuanced picture of the relationship between high and low literature one in which critics and authors alike grappled with the common problem of commercial versus cultural capital Through new literary readings and original archival research from holdings in the United States and France O'Neil-Henry revises existing understandings of a crucial moment in the development of industrialized culture In the process she discloses links between this formative period and our own in which mobile electronic devices internet based bookstores and massive publishing conglomerates alter once again the way literature is written sold and read

Salman Rushdie in the Cultural Marketplace Ana Cristina Mendes, 2016-03-23 Taking up the roles that Salman Rushdie himself has assumed as a cultural broker, gatekeeper and mediator in various spheres of public production, Ana Cristina Mendes situates his work in terms of the contemporary production, circulation and consumption of postcolonial texts within the workings of the cultural industries. Mendes pays particular attention to Rushdie as a public performer across various creative platforms, not only as a novelist and short story writer but also as a public intellectual, reviewer and film critic. Mendes argues that how a postcolonial author becomes personally and professionally enmeshed in the dealings of the cultural industries is of particular relevance at a time when the market is strictly regulated by a few multinational corporations. She contends that marginality should not be construed exclusively as a basis for understanding Rushdie's work, since a critical grounding in marginality will predictably involve a reproduction of the traditional postcolonial binaries of oppressor/oppressed and colonizer/colonized that the writer subverts. Rather, she seeks to expand existing interpretations of Rushdie's work, itineraries and frameworks in order to take into account the actual conditions of postcolonial cultural production and circulation within a marketplace that is global in both orientation and effects.

Literary Partnerships and the Marketplace David Dowling, 2012-01-16 This book examines the notable business and personal relationships in nineteenth century publishing. Literary partnerships between author/publisher, student/mentor, husband/wife and parent/child are explored in this context.

Religion and the Marketplace in the United States Jan Stievermann, Philip Goff, 2015 This collection of essays focuses on the diverse interactions between religious and commercial practices in U.S. history. Studying religion and the marketplace from various angles, each chapter offers insights into a long and intimate relationship between two aspects of American culture.

Modernism and the Marketplace Alissa G. Karl, 2013-01-11 Though the relationship of modernist writers and artists to mass marketplaces and popular cultural forms is often understood as one of ambivalence if not antagonism, Modernism and the Marketplace redirects this established line of inquiry, considering the practical and conceptual interfaces between literary practice and dominant economic institutions and ideas.

American Romanticism and the Marketplace Michael T. Gilmore, 2010-02-15 This book can take its place on the shelf beside Henry Nash Smith's Virgin Land and Leo Marx's The Machine in the Garden. Choice Gilmore demonstrates the profound sustained engagement with society embodied in the works of Emerson, Hawthorne, Thoreau and Melville. In effect, he relocates the American Renaissance where it properly belongs, at the centre of a broad social, economic and ideological movement from the Jacksonian era to the Civil War. Basically, Gilmore's argument concerns the writers' participation in what Thoreau called the curse of trade. He details their mixed resistance to and complicity in the burgeoning literary marketplace and, by extension, the entire economic revolution which, between 1830 and 1860, transformed the United States into a market.

society The result is a model of literary historical revisionism Gilmore's opening chapters on Emerson and Thoreau show that transcendental thought and language can come fully alive when understood within the material processes and ideological constraints of their time The remaining five chapters on Hawthorne and Melville contain some of the most penetrating recent commentaries on the aesthetic strategies of American Romantic fiction presented within and through some of the most astute thoughtful considerations I know of commodification and the democratic public in mid nineteenth century America

Practically and methodologically American Romanticism and the Marketplace has a significant place in the movement towards a new American literary history It places Gilmore at the forefront of a new generation of critics who are not just reinterpreting familiar texts or discovering new texts to interpret but reshaping our ways of thinking about literature and culture Sacvan Bercovitch Times Literary Supplement Gilmore writes with energy clarity and wit The reader is enriched by this book William H Shurr American Literature

Scholars in the Marketplace. The Dilemmas of Neo-Liberal Reform at Makerere University, 1989-2005 Mahmood Mamdani, 2007 Scholars in the Marketplace is a case study of market based reforms at Uganda's Makerere University With the World Bank heralding neoliberal reform at Makerere as the model for the transformation of higher education in Africa it has implications for the whole continent At the global level the Makerere case exemplifies the fate of public universities in a market oriented and capital friendly era The Makerere reform began in the 1990s and was based on the premise that higher education is more of a private than a public good Instead of pitting the public against the private and the state against the market this book shifts the terms of the debate toward a third alternative than explores different relations between the two The book distinguishes between privatisation and commercialisation two processes that drove the Makerere reform It argues that whereas privatisation the entry of privately sponsored students is compatible with a public university where priorities are publicly set commercialisation financial and administrative autonomy for each faculty to design a market responsive curriculum inevitably leads to a market determination of priorities in a public university The book warns against commercialisation of public universities as the subversion of public institutions for private purposes
