spires and dwellings of Peru could compare in the matter of dogged pertinacity with that earthquake which diurnally and hourly shocked little Gertie's dwelling quivered the white dimity curtains of little Gertie's bed and shook little Gertie's frame. A graceful rounded little frame it was yet strong and firmly knit perhaps in consequence of its having been from infancy so constantly and so well shaken together. Her neat little body was surmounted by a head which no sculptor in search of an antique model would have chosen. Gertie's profile was not Grecian her features were not classic but they were comely and rosy and so sweet that most people wanted to kiss them and many people did. Gertie did not object. Probably being only six she imagined that this was the ordinary and natural method of salutation. Yet it was observable that the child did not reciprocate kisses except in one or two special cases. She had evidently a mind of her own a fact which was displayed most strikingly in the passionate manner in which she reciprocated the embraces of John Marrot her father when that large hairy individual came in one evening and catching her in his long arms pressed her little body to his damp pilot cloth coated breast and her chubby face to his oily smoke and soot begrimed countenance forgetful for the moment of the remonstrance from his wife that was sure to follow.

For some time he was employed by Messrs Constable the publishers but in 1856 he gave up business for the profession of literature and began the series of adventure stories for the young with which his name is popularly associated.
