How to Implement and Supervise a Learning Style Program Rita Dunn Dunn, 1996-04-01 This how to book is for supervisors interested in understanding implementing and guiding staff in the proven educational methods of learning styles Learning how to learn is what the learning styles approach is all about Advocate Rita Dunn explains learning styles and how they develop and describes how to teach students with diverse learning styles International studies and testimonials indicate statistically higher standardized achievement test scores for students who are taught to use their learning style strengths and yield evidence that this approach makes a difference for all kinds of learners As an award winning educator and a supervisor Dunn offers tips on how to introduce learning styles to your staff and students and how to respond to the cognitive physiological and sociological aspects of learning that influence the students in your school and district Effective

Compensatory Education Sourcebook: Project profiles Philip A. Griswold, Dorothy L. Alexander, Joanne Bogart, Kathleen Cotton, Joe B. Hansen, Mary Jean LeTendre, Robert M. Stonehill, 1986 Computers in the Special Education Classroom Dee LaMont Johnson, Cleborne D. Maddux, Ann C. Candler-Lotven, 1987 Authorities from the fields of education and computers explore the vital issues and concerns related to effectively using available computer technologies in the special education classroom They thoroughly examine the potential benefits of technology in addressing the needs of the disabled the limits in the application of technology to the lives of the disabled and the risks of a person with disabilities becoming too dependent on technology Timely and practical information is offered for effectively applying available technologies advocating new technologies and conducting needed research The Subject Matters Susan S. Stodolsky, 1988-04-25 To achieve quality education in American schools we need a better understanding of the way classroom instruction works Susan S. Stodolsky addresses this need with her pioneering analysis of the interrelations between forms of instruction levels of student involvement and subject matter Her intensive observation of fifth grade math and social studies classes reveals that subject matter a variable overlooked in recent research has a profound effect on instructional practice Stodolsky presents a challenge to educational research She shows that classroom activities are coherent actions shaped by the instructional context especially what is taught Stodolsky contradicts the received view of both teaching and learning as uniform and consistent Individual teachers arrange instruction very differently depending on what they are teaching and students respond to instruction very differently depending on the structure and demands of the lesson The instructional forms used in math classes a basic subject and social studies classes an enrichment subject differ even when the same teacher conducts both classes Social studies classes show more diversity in activities while math classes are very similar to one another Greater variety is found in social studies within a given teacher s class and when different teachers classes are compared Nevertheless in the classrooms Stodolsky studied the range of instructional arrangements is very constricted Challenging the back to basics movement Stodolsky s study indicates that regardless of subject matter students are more responsive to instruction that requires a higher degree of intellectual complexity and performance to learning situations that involve them in interaction with their peers and to active modes of learning Stodolsky also argues that students develop ideas about how to learn a school subject such as math by participating in particular activities tied to instruction in the subject These conceptions about learning are unplanned but enduring and significant consequences of schooling The Subject Matters has important implications for instructional practice and the training education and supervision of teachers Here is a new way of understanding the dynamics of teaching and learning that will transform how we think about schools and how we study them
